Your decision will affect your job and your family.

An Important Message from Your Union

The difference between workers who built this bridge connecting Missouri to Nebraska? Missouri workers were paid $31.56 an hour while Nebraskans were to be paid $8.30. That's the difference between "Right to Work" states and pro-union Missouri.<sup>1</sup>

Which side are the candidates for Governor on?

On Union Jobs,

The Candidates for Governor Couldn't Be

Further Apart.

The Rulo bridge project was built by Missouri and Nebraska, with each states' workers meeting in the middle. Two sets of workers, doing the same work. Because our laws are different, their lives are different.

Nebraska's CEO-written "Right to Work" law and anti-union policies meant low wages for Rulo workers, originally $8.30 per hour.

Missouri's pro-union status meant strong wages. Missouri workers earned $31.56 an hour.

Your Vote for Governor Will Affect Your Job

Gov. Nixon vetoed the CEO-written law "Right to Work" because it could have destroyed our right to negotiate together, cut wages by 12% and increased workplace deaths by 54%.<sup>2</sup>

The fight isn't over. The corporate CEOs want "Right to Work" on the books in Missouri. The next Governor could make that decision.

Chris Koster: PRO-WORKER

Chris Koster stands with us and opposes "Right to Work" legislation.<sup>4</sup>

Eric Greitens: ANTI-WORKER

Eric Greitens has pledged to the corporate CEOs that he'll sign "Right to Work" legislation.<sup>3</sup>
